The petitioner(s) avers that, the Alabama Correctional Time Act (CIT), (14-9-41), code of Alabama subsection (e), Acts 80-446, violates administrative procedures, violates state constitutional requirements for passage of legislation or Federal protection and "due process" guaranteed in the way that it has and still being administered by selective implementation through the department of corrections and administrative department.

Acts 80-446, violates Article 4, of the Alabama Constitution because it contains a provision which broadened the scope of the act beyond that expressed in the title.

Acts 80-446, violates Article 4, 61, of the Alabama Constitution (1901), because an amendment in 1991 to the act changed the original purpose of the act.

Acts 80-446, on its face, violates the "equal protection" guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment, Article 4, each law shall contain one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title.

Prisoners that are prohibited from earning goodtime by acts 80-446, or by 14-9-41, are receiving goodtime credits selectively by the department of correction (DOC) against legislative intent.

HABITUAL FELONY OFFENDERS

The act, 80-446 prohibited habitual offenders from receiving any deduction from their sentence, however, in 1991, this act was in effect from an earlier legislative passage acts no: 80-446. In 1991, the incentive "goodtime incentive act", was amended. This amended act allowed inmates with fifteen (15) years or less, to receive the benifits of receiving incentive goodtime credits. This amendment also allowed habitual offenders to receive goodtime credits and deductions from their sentence, this amended act was in violation of acts 80-446.

Inmates are denied the benefits of receiving incentive goodtime credits on a statute or under a statute that is abbigious.

Subsection (e) implementation by the commissioner of the Alabama Department of Corrections to code of alabama 14-9-41 is unconstitutional, and is being implemented against legislative intent.

(6). Acts[80-446], Codified in (14-9-41) Code Of Alabama reads,..

(a). Each prisoner who shall thereafter be convicted of any offense against the laws of the state of alabama and is confined, in the execution of judgment or sentence upon any conviction, in the penitentiary or at hard labor for the county or any municipal jail for a definite or inderterminate term, other than for"life" whose record of conduct shows that he has faithfully observed the rules for a period of time to be specified by the article may be entitled to earn a deduction from the term of his sentence as follows:

(1). SEVENTY-FIVE (75) DAYS FOR EACH 30 DAYS ACTUALLY SERVED WHILE THE PRISONER IS CLASSIFIED AS A CLASS (1) ONE PRISONER,

(2). FORTY (40) DAYS FOR EACH (30) DAYS ACTUALLY SERVED WHILE THE PRISONER IS A CLASS (2) PRISONER,

(3). TWENTY (20) DAYS FOR EACH (30) DAYS SERVED WHILE THE PRISONER IS A CLASS (3) THREE PRISONER,

(b) Within 90 days after May 19, 1980. The Commissioner of the Department Of Corrections shall establish and publish appropriate directive certain criteria not in conflict with this article for class 1,2,3, and 4 prisoners, classification shall encompass consideration of the prisoners behavior, discipline, and work pratice and job responsability(s).

(7). The petitioner avers, that he is being denied goodtime credits based soley on the lenght of his sentence 14-9-41(e), Yet, he has been classified at one time or another during his incarceration as a class 1,2,3, and 4 prisoner, the petitioner has been to WORK RELEASES", "HONOR CAMPS" WORK CAMPS", throughout his incarceration, he has proven though the years to be cooperative and respect authority, work hard on every detail, and has proven to be "trust worthy", the petitioner did not receive any GOODTIME CREITS while in those classes.

(8). The commisssioner has implemented a policy in classifying prisoners to a certain class...class 1,2,3 and 4. When a prisoner is placed in either class of the above classes there is a procedure and policy that the prisoner must comply with to enter that class and a policy that the prisoner must obey in order to stay in that class or move to a higher but less restrictive class, Each class is implemented around a inmates behavior, disciplinary history, discipline and ability to work, aach class affords that prisoner a certain amount of goodtime to be earned and a deduction from his sentence while in that particular class, the department of corrections is placing prisoners in those classes, but are denying to them the goodtime while in that class, that is afforded to them by that class, 14-9-41 of the code of Alabama,[14-9-41] of the code of Aalabama governors the amount of "goodtime" credits each prisoner must earn or can earn while in a particular class, this section also governors the amount of time a prisoner must remain in a particular class before being eligible for a lesser restricted class. Prisoners are being placed in class 1,2, and 3 under a condition that has been imposed, and implemented, by the Alabama legislature which governors the prisoners conduct, behavior, and ability to adjust to prison "life", however, prisoners are being denied the benefits to receive incentive "goodtime" credits in that class by the department of corrections, even though each class affords prisoners the privelege to receive those credits, prisoners with "SEX" crimes and "VIOLENT" offenders receive the benefits of goodtime credits while in those classes and a deduc-tion from their sentence, while prisoners with "non violent" are property crimes are being denied goodtime credits are any reduction from their sentence while in those classes... The inmates which are supposed to be prohibited from earning goodtime credits are "Habitual offenders" those convicted of a class "A" felony and "Trafficking" are in fact the very one's that is receing good-time credits.

(9). Acts 80-446, codified in 1409-41 (code of Alabama) reads:

(1) Class 1- Is set aside for those prisoners who are (considered), to be "trustworthy" in every respect and who, by virtue of their work habits, conduct an attitude of cooperation, have proven their trustworthiness.... an example: of a class 1 prisoner is one who could work without constant supervision by a security officer.

(2). Class 2: Is that category of prisoners who will be under the supervision of a correctional employee at all times. any inmate shall remain in this class for a minimum period of (6) six months before being eligible for class 1.

(3). Class 3: Is set aside for prisoners with special assignments. they may not receive the privileges of class 1 and 2 prisoners, any inmate shall remain in this classification for a period of the minimum of three months before being eligible for class (2) two.

(4). Class 4: Is for those prisoners yet, not classified and for those who are able to work and refuse, or who commit disciplinary infractions of such nature which do not warrant a "higher Classification", inmates that are classified in this earning class receives "NO" "CORRECTIONAL INCENTIVE GOODTIME". this class is generally referred to as "FLAT TIME" or "DAY FOR DAY". Any inmate shall remain in this classification for a minimum of thirty (30) days before being eligible for class (3) three.

There is nothing contained in class 1,2, or three which prohibits a prisoner from receiving goodtime credits while in that class, Yet, the department of corrections are denting inmates goodtime while in class 1,2, or 3 based soley on the lenght of their sentence without any consideration to the "seriouness" of their offense, crimes or convictions, prisoners that have been prohibited from earning goodtime by the legislature deeming their crimes to serious to receive beneficiary treatment are receing goodtime by the department of corrections while in class 1,2, or 3.....
[SEX OFFENDERS AND CHILD MOLESTORS SHOULD NOT RECEIVE AND REDUCTIONS FROM THEIR CONVICTION AND SENTENCE]/.....

(11). The petitioner avers, that they is being denied "Equal Protection" of the law Under 14-9-41, subsection (e) because, he has been sentenced to a term of (20) twenty years for the charge of theft of property 1st degree..

(A). Example; the legislature amended section (15-18-8 code of Alabama) May 19, 2000. to allow prisoners that are sentenced to a term of imprisonment 20 years or less to have their sentences split yet, the legislative obviously deemed the nature of their offenses to serious to merit the benefits of receiving goodtime sentence reductions. It is reasonable to assumed that the legislature also concluded that anyone who received a sentence in the class "A" felony range would not merit beneficial treatment..... When a prisoner is convicted of a class "A" felony and receives a sentence of 20 years and have that sentence split to serve three years incarceration and the maximum years of probation of five(5) years, that prisoner will be allowed to complete his entire twenty (20) years sentence in eight (8) years without any futher supervision by the state of Alabama, however, when a prisoner is sentence to that same term of imprisonment and does not have his or her sentence split under the split sentence act, that prisoner will have to serve his entire sentence either on parole, if paroled, or in the department of corrections...When 15-18-8 split sentence act was amended, the goodtime incentive act 14-9-41 of the code of Alabama should have also been amended in order to bring the same prisoners and less violent prisoners within the same category of sentence reductions under "Equal Protection" of the law.

(1). One of the purposes of the requirement of this section 45, (supra), that the subject of law shall be clearly expressed in the title, is to prevent surprise or fraud upon the legislative by incorporating in "BILLS". provision not reasonably disclosed by its title, and which might be overlooked, and unintentionally approved in enacting (THE BILL) 247 so 2d 195 (123 so 2d 505

(2). The incentive goodtime credit statute is being applied arbitrary and selective by the department of corrections against legislative intent.

(3). Prisoners are being denied goodtime soley on the length of their sentence and not the seriouness of their offense.

(4). Inmates are classified under a behavior system. This system classify(s) inmates and place them in a class 1,2, or three prisoner, each class provides inmates with a opportunity to receive goodtime credits and a reduction of sentence.

(5). Repeated "SEX" offenders and repeated "VIOLENT" offenders receives benefits of incentive goodtime credits while the majority of inmates with less serious crimes to include "non violent" offenses are been denied such incentives.

(6). Inmates are "Categorically" denied goodtime by the department of corrections which is in violation of the legislature intent... SEE: [Lopez V. Davis].

(A). Act 80-446 Violates Alabama constitutional amendment: section 61 by its 1991 amendment, Acts 80-446 "Incentice Goodtime Credits" was passed in 1980, by the Alabama Legislature, the "Bill" denied goodtime credits to prisoners who has been sentenced to "life" or "Death", Subsection (e) broadened those credits to deny prisoners who have been convicted of a class "A" felony, those who receive a sentence of 10 years, prisoners that has been convicted of assault in where the victim suffered pernament loss or pernament loss or partial loss or use of a bodily organ or appendage, those that has been convicted of sexual assault upon a "Child" under 17 years old or prohibited from receiving good time credits,[sexual assaults under the age of 17 or prohibited from entering class 1 earning statutes but are not prohibited from earning goodtime credits].

The habitual offenders act of 1981 also prohibited prisoners that has been sentenced as a habitual offender from receiving any reduction from sentence. Habitual offenders was not the only class that was prohibited from earning goodtime by the legislative statute, Inmates who receive a sentence of 10 years or more and those inmates who receives a sentence in the class "A" felony was also precluded. [minimum sentence a habitual offender can receive is 15 years].

Act 80-446 was amended from 10 years to 15 years act of July 31, 1991. No. 91-637, codified at Ala. code 14-9-41 (e) Act 1201 effective october 29, 1991. The act was amended because the prison system was "Dangerous Overcrowded" with habitual offenders, When this act was amended it "Drastically" changed the purpose of the act, The amendment allowed the habitual and repeated habitual felony offenders the benefits of receiving goodtime credits and a reduction from their sentence in violation of legislative intent... [this was totally against the legisltive purpose of passing the act. The legislative in passing act 80-446 made it be known that habitual felony offenders would not receive any goodtime or reduction from sentence pursuant to this act.[This] amendment was also applied retroactively... when the act was amended to allow goodtime credit and a reduction from sentence, this amendment also denied inmates "Equal Protection" of law when this amendment did not grant inmates who was habitual felony offenders with sentences of 15 year or more, the legislative not only denied habitual offenders good time but also denied prisoners who was convicted of a class "A" felony or received a sentence in the class "A" felon range. [when a prisoner receive a sentence of 10 years or more doesn't means that, that person has committed a serious offense.

Brooks V. State 622 so 2d 447 (reversed and remanded) denial of goodtime credits violated prisoners "equal Protection" when the reason for such denial was based soley on the time of conviction and not determination about the nature or the seriouness of the offense. The court observed that it was rational to deny goodtime benefits to both class "A" felony(s) and those who has been sentenced to 10 years or more, because the latter group receives a sentence in the class "A" felony range, and therefore, could be considered as "Serious Offender", the minimum sentence for a class "A" felony is 10 years, Alabama Code 13 A-5-6..are... inelligible for goodtime because the legislature deemed the nature of their offense to serious to merit the benefits of goodtime sentence reduction, it was reasonably assume that the legislature also concluded that anyone who received a sentence in the[legislature act] class "A" felony range would also not merit beneficial treatment. Thomas V. State 552 so 2d 875. Gaines V. State 581 so 2d 448, The supreme court concluded that there is a "perceivable" set of facts under which a statutory discrimination against "Sex Offenders" is revelant to and justified by permissible legislative purpose, that perceivable set of facts includes the possibility that a convicted sex offenders who is not rehabilitated might be released early.

When the legislature amended 14-9-41 (e) in 1991 from 10 years to 15 years it qualified the habitual felony offenders to receive goodtime credits, this amended act came in conflict with prior legislative law which prohibited habitual offenders from receiving goodtime, this amendment also expanded the goodtime eligibility to include inmates sentenced to longer prison terms presumably for a more serious crime. 275 Ala 254 opinion of justice.....one of the purpose of the requirement of section 45, supra, that the subject of a law shall be clearly expresses in its title, to prevent surprise or fraud upon the legislature by incorporating its bill provision not reasonably disclosed by its title, and which might be overlooked. Kendrick V. Boyd 255 Ala. 53, so 2d 694 Taylor V. john son 265 Ala. 541.

Ex-Parte Hilsabeck 477 so 2d 472. The purpose of act 80-446, is clearly expressed as one to establish the "alabama Correctional" Incentice Act", that alone state that the legislation deals with goodtime for prison inmates, the next title respectively, states that the act establishes "certain criteria" for earned deductions and creates "classifications for measurment of such deductions and eligibility thereof (habitual offenders) are mention as one o of the groups excluded from earning goodtime credits..... Act 80-446 violates article 4 section 61, of the Alabama constitution section 61 provides "no law shall be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change it original purpose.

Acts 80-446 was made clear and unambigous in its provisions when uncertainly was injected into the act when its provisions was attempted to be broaned or expanded the lanuage of the act.

Wayne V. State, 84 L.ed 2d 547.

Aalabama deals with a racial classifiaction system embodied in a criminal statute the 1991 amendment does not order these ex- clusions by defining the statutory terms of prisoners convcited of "non Violent" offenses or the cognate terms 'crimes of violence instead, the current regulation relies upon the discretion allo- ted to the commissioner of the department of corrections in grant- ing a sentenec reduction to exclude categories of inmates, the administartion regulation, designed to achieve consistent admini- strative of the incentive, now provides, inmates with less serious crimes and property crimes are being denied goodtime credits based soley on the lenght of their sentence, they are also "Bracketed" in a category with violent offenders because the department of corrections suggests that they poses a particular risk to the public...while cedric has been incarcerated he has been classified as a vlass 1, 2, and 3, prisoner at some point during his incarceration to include "three" years at "work release", but has been categorically denied the benefits of good-time while in these class.

(1). Inmates who are sentenced to 15 years are less to include habitual felony offenders the privelege of receiving goodtime credits and allowed violent offenders with longer prison terms that was prohibited by the legislative to receive goodtime under the new amended act.

The question to be answered pertaining to this fact of law is; could the department of corrections place a inmate in a category which grants goodtime credits and then deny that inmate goodtime credits based soley on the lenght of his sentence without consideration as to the seriouness of the crime, this kind of selective action by the department of correction is what cause the statute to be ambigious[unamibigious] and deny him "equal protection" and "due process" of law. If the legislature wanted the department of corrections to reduce the category of inmates eligiable for early release incentive (beyoud the ones indentified by the legislature) the legislative would have specifically placed this grant of authorty in the language of the statute, and if the department of corrections have discretion to deny early release to some inmates, but only based on a inmates sentence and not the factors therin, then the agency cannot categorically deny early release even to the recidivist with prior, or perhaps "mutiple" convictions of "Rape" "Robbery," Homicide" or any other crime of violence..The Question to this issue is?

Did the legislature of Alabama intended for all inmates to receive some reduction from their sentence who has been convicted of a non violent crime?

Did the Alabama Legislative intend for "SEX" offenders and repeated "VIOLENT" offenders to receive goodtime credits and receive a early release from prison?

Did the legislature intend for Habitual Felony Offenders to receive goodtime credits and a early release from their sentence?

Did the legislature intend to allow inmates with sex offenses, and violent offenses to receive the benefits of goodtime credits, and deny inmates with property offenses this benefits based soley on the lenght of a person sentence and not the seriouness of their offense?

We deal here with a ambigious statute, which grants goodtime credits to the majority of "sex" offenders and denies goodtime to a majority of inmates who has been convicted of less serious crimes where the power of the state weighs most heavily upon the indiiduals or group, we must be especially sensitive to the policies of the equal protection clause which, reflected in legislative enactments dating from 1870, were intended to secure "Full and equal benefits of all laws and proceedings for the security of persons" to like punishment, pains, penalties, taxes, liscenses, and exactions of every kind, and to others.

When the law lays an unequal hand on those who have committed instrincically the same quality of offense and sterilize one and not the other, it has made invidious a discrimination as if it had selected a particular race or nationality for oppresive treatment.

[YICK WO V. HOPKINS 30 L.ed 2d 220]

subsequent legislation declaring the intent of an earlier statute is entitled to significant weght....although a mistaken opinion of the legislature concerning the meaning of an earlier statute does not itself make law, such an opinion must nevertheless be given the effect of law, prospectively if it is expressed in words competent to make law, since it is within the power of the legislative for the future, although inoperative as to the past.

"SEX OFFENDERS"

Mckune V. Lile (2000) 536 us 24, 153 L.ed 2d 47, "Sex Offenders"
SEX OFFENDERS are serious threat in this nation, in 1995, an estimated 355,000 rapes and sexual assaults occurred nationwide. U.S. Department Of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statistics, sex offenders offenses reported between 1980 and 1994, the population of imprisonment of sex offenders increased at a faster rate than any other category of violent offenses,[violent crimes]. As in most sexual cases, the victim of sexual assault are most juveniles. In 1995, for instance, a majority of the reported forcible sexual offenses were committed against persons under 18 years of age.... [University of New Hampshire] crimes against children, research center fact sheet. Nearly 4 out of 10 imprisoned, violent sex offenders said their victims were 12 years of age or younger.... when convicted sex offenders re-enter society, they are much likely to re-offend, be re-arrested for a new rape or sexual assault.

Tilttle[18 USC & 3621] Governs the imprisonment of persons convicted of federal crimes. In 1990 congress amended the statue to provide that the Bereau shall....make available appropriate substance abuse treatment for each prisoner the Bereau determines has a treatable condition of substance addiction or abuse, Four years later, congress again amended 3621, this time to provide incentives for prisoners participating in the program. The incentive provision of that section reads:" the period of a prisoner convicted of non-violent offense remains in custody after successfully completing a treatment program may be reduced by the Bereau of prisons, but such reduction may not be more than one year from the term the prisoner must otherwise serve.

In 1995, The Bureau published a rule to implement the early release incentive. 60 Fed reg 27692-27695; 28 CFR & 550. 58. Because the statute explicitly confined the incentive to prisoners convicted of "non-violent offenses" 18 U.S.C & 3621(e) (2) (b), the BOP ranked inelligable for early release all inmates currently incarcerated for crimes of violence. 60 Fed Reg 27692. As explained in the BOP program statement, the BOP defined "crimes of violence" to include a drug trafficking conviction under 21 USC.

3621 (e)(2)(B) required the bureau to look into only the offense of conviction (Drug TRafficking), and not to sentencing factors (Fire arm Possession), in determining whether an offender was convicted of a "non violent offense", and therefore elligable under the statute for the early release incentive.

In contrast to the earlier rule. However, the 1997 regulation does not order this exclusion by defining the statutory term prisoner convicted of a 'non-violent offense' or the cognate term crimes of violence'. instead, the current regulation relies upon' the discretion allotted to the director of the bureau of prisons in granting a sentence reduction to exclude categories of inmates. The regulation, designed to achieve consistent administration of the incentive, now provides,

(a) ADDITIONAL EARLY RELEASE CRITERIA.(1). As an exercise of the discretion invested in the director of the BOP, the following category of inmates are not eligible for early release.

"(iv) Inmates who have a prior felony are misdeamenor conviction for homicide, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, or child sexual abuse offenses;

"(vi) Inmates whose currently offense is a felony:

(B) That involved in carrying, possession, or use of a firearm or other dangerous weapon..... To the Beraeus asserted discretion to prescribe additional early release criteria. Drug traffickers who possess firearms when they engage in crimes are no longer characterized as "violent offenders" within the meaning of the statute. But they are bracketed, for the sentence reduction purposes with persons currently incarcerated for "non violent" offenses who in the past committed crimes that qualified as violent. The preconviction conduct of both armed offenders and certain redicivist in the Beraeus's view, suggest that they pose a particular risk to the public.... In 1997, petitioner Christopher A. Lopez was convicted of possession with the intent to distribute methamphetamine in violation. Upon finding that Lopez possessed a firearm in connection with his offense, the district court enhanced his sentence two levels.

While incarcerated, Lopez requested substance abuse treatment. The Beraeu found him qualified for the resident drug treatment program, but categorically inelligible for early release. The court reversed. Bellis V. Davis 186 F 3d 1092 (199). The statute provides the period a prisoner convicted of a non-violent offense remains in custody after successfully completing a drug treatment program may be reduced by the BOP.

The measure thus catergorically denies early release eligibility to inmates convicted of violent offenses. The question we address is whether the Beraeu has discretion to delineate, as an additional category of inelligible inmates, those whose current offenses is a felony conviction involving a firearm.

Lopez urges that the statute is unambiguous, he says that. by identifying a class of inmates ineligible for sentence reduction under 3621 (e) (2) (B), those convicted of a violent offense, congress has barred the Bureau from identifying further categories of ineligible inmates. If congress wanted the BOP to reduce the category of inmates eligible for the early release incentives (beyond the ones identified by congress) Congress would have specifically placed this grant of authority in the language of the statute'. Congress used the word "May" rather than "Shall", has no significance. And if the BOP does have discretion to deny early release to some inmates, but categorically deny early release even to the recidivists with prior (Perhaps Multiple) convictions of rape, robbery, homicide etc, for that provision, as much as the exclusion of inmates imprisoned for the offense involving a firearm, entails no individualized determination based on postconviction conduct. (A prisoner serving a term of one year and less than "life" may receive credits toward the service of the prisoners sentence....subject to determination by the BOP that, during that year, the prisoner has displayed exemplary compliance with such institutional disciplinary regulations").

The question at issue in this case is whether congress merely intended for some, of federal prisoners who were convicted of non-violent crimes and who has successfully completed a Bureau of prisoners drug treatment program are eligible for a sentence reduction..... The court stated; I believe congress has answered the precise question. The statute expressly states that the sentence of every prisoner in that category "May Be Reduced", both the text of the statute and the aforementioned history demonstrate that congress directly addressed the precise question of what offenses ought to be disqualified and prisoners disqualification for eligibility for sentence reduction, and its "unambiguous answer was "violent offenses". under the statute as enacted, those who committed crimes of violence are categorically barred from receiving sentence reduction while those convicted of non-violent offenses "May" receive such an inducement.
